Meet the Fan Designer

José Miguel Medina (LEGO® Ideas name yop1172) is a data scientist from Mexico City. Besides pursuing a PhD in Computer Science, he is passionate about his artistic hobbies, from creative coding and digital animation to LEGO building.

LEGO® Ideas Fan Designer with original submission

"I've always loved building toys, and in recent years the LEGO fan community in my country has grown, and I've met some amazing builders. My La Catrina model reflects her joyful and elegant spirit, a symbol that reminds us to celebrate life and appreciate its beauty. It takes inspiration from the traditional La Catrina clay sculptures found in Mexican folk art. As LEGO builders, we express ourselves through bricks, and I feel this project perfectly combines the artistic side of LEGO design with one of my culture's most meaningful traditions. The skull was the hardest part, and making the model as anatomically correct as possible. The natural, flowing look of the skirt is the most striking part. Reaching 10,000 votes was super exciting – honestly, it felt like I was dreaming! Thanks to everyone who voted."

A cultural icon

Over the past century, La Catrina has sashayed her way across the world, first as a cheeky social satire figure and today as one of Mexico's most charming cultural ambassadors. Even in her earliest forms, she has always represented a blend of worlds, playfully reflecting Mexico's vibrant culture in all forms. Over time, her wide grin and extravagant hat have blossomed into the humorous spirit of Día de los Muertos, the annual festival where families celebrate memories of their lost loved ones. She is often depicted with monarch butterflies, representing the souls of the departed returning to Earth for the Day of the Dead. The celebration coincides with the monarch butterflies' migration to Mexico, further solidifying their symbolism as the spirits visiting the living. The traditional sugar skulls, also portrayed on her flowing skirt, are reminders that death is not a bitter end but rather a sweet continuation of the natural circle of life. Even beyond her homeland, La Catrina has evolved into a transcultural icon who frequently makes appearances in pop culture, sculptures, parades, art, fashion and films. No matter who or where you are, La Catrina invites us all to embrace the wonderful quirks of life (and death) with a smile!

Originally, La Catrina was known as La Calavera Catrina – “The Dapper Skull.”

from the LEGO® Ideas Design Team

La Catrina embodies the Mexican cultural perspective that life's transitions are full of beauty and worthy of reflection. The contrast between her elegant attire and striking skeletal appearance gives her a universal appeal, and she's such a compelling and inspirational figure. Fan Designer José's interpretation of her in LEGO® form is a masterpiece that pays tribute to the enduring legacy of La Catrina. His model was already designed with meticulous anatomical accuracy, and we have remained true to human proportions both in La Catrina's skeleton, her dress and every decorative element. Her colourful costume is fashioned from individual bricks with printed decorations and, of course, her monarch butterflies follow her wherever she goes. With full articulation in her neck, arms and hands, she almost seems lifelike, and you can create so many different fun poses and expressions. Whether you want to celebrate Día de los Muertos or the creative joy of everyday life, it's sure to make an engaging conversation piece!
