Meet the fan designer

Belgian fan designer Amber Veyt (LEGO® Ideas name TheAmbrinator) is a lifelong magic and LEGO fan and a passionate designer at heart. She loves drawing and gaming, and in 2021 she participated in the Dutch/Belgian LEGO Masters TV show.

“When I was little, my parents gave me lots of LEGO® sets, and I’ve always loved the limitless creations I could make with them. LEGO building is still a big part of my life and a great passion of mine. I’ve always been a huge fan of Disney’s Hocus Pocus. I watch it every year and still love it. The Sanderson Sisters’ cottage is full of details and almost a character of its own in the story and I thought it would make a great LEGO set. I had previously submitted a Disney Hocus Pocus-inspired set to the LEGO Ideas website, reaching 10,000 supporters, but I decided to upgrade my ideas for the house to make it more playable. I started over from scratch and applied new techniques and design details to the new version. It took several months, but using digital design programs really helped. The hinges in the house and the watermill were the most challenging to recreate. Movable objects are just really difficult for some reason! The outfits, minifigure faces and decorations were so much fun to design. When I shared the final model on Instagram and Facebook, a lot of fans helped me share it and spread the word (THANK YOU!). A few people from the original Disney Hocus Pocus cast even shared it. That was a dream come true. I was just ecstatic when this version gained enough support and was approved as an official set! I hope both Disney’s Hocus Pocus and LEGO fans will have fun building and playing with the house and the colourful characters.”

I tch-it-a-cop-it-a, mel-a-ka-mys-tic-a... Ooh, Halloween. The holiday that invites us to dwell on our darker side and embrace the mysterious, messy and macabre, the grim and grotesque. All for fun and thrills, of course! But did you know the celebration most likely traces back to an ancient European tradition? Sambain, a 2,000-year-old Celtic feast, took place after the harvest and honoured the spirits of lost ones who were believed to reappear just this one solemn night a year, lingering in the realm between the living and the dead. Over time, Catholic saints were honoured on what became All Hallows’ Eve, which evolved into an evening to celebrate all our dearly departed – and to thwart off the not-so-dear in life and still feared in death: the cunning conjurers of dark magic and witchcraft. It’s the perfect recipe for an imagination-enhancing potion!

But look, they conjure!

For decades Halloween, as we know it today, has enthralled kids and adults of all ages. We love our traditions, from trick-or-treating and carving pumpkins to playing monsters and watching grueling, quirky or funny Halloween-themed movies with family and friends. One of the most iconic of these is Disney's Hocus Pocus (1993), which has become an undisputed Halloween comedy classic. The Sanderson Sisters, a troublesome trio of wily witches, meet their dismal end on a fateful night in 1693 after tricking the village children with their magic. But amid their misfortune, Winifred, the oldest and wisest of the sisters (though not by much), casts the spell that allows them to return to their physical form 300 years later. And behold, the anticipated, bewitching mayhem ensues for generations of fans to savour. Broom, ho! Dust off your flying Hoover, it's time to brew your own Disney Hocus Pocus stories and potions and build Amuck! Amuck! AMUCK!

“Oh look, another glorious morning. Makes me sick!”
— Winifred Sanderson

Trivia and treats

The house in the movie was inspired by 17th-century architecture and the cast and crew all pitched ideas to create layers upon layers of ghastrly, ghoulisr and goofy details.

In the movie, the witches' cauldron was lit from below to cast an eerie glow on the cottage interior. The feature in the LEGO® model works much the same way – with the light brick casting a chilling glow into the room.

The original title of the movie was
The Halloween House.

“BOOOOOOOOOK!” Winifred’s book of spells was actually three books. One with a remote-controlled moving eye and two containing recipes and spells, with the eye open and closed. The book is bound in human skin and adorned with human fingers and metal serpents (eek!).

As the Disney Hocus Pocus story takes us to Halloween in 1993, Max, Dani and Allison are in school. That year, Halloween was actually on a Sunday – not a school day. Maybe someone cast a leap-year spell that year?

Which witch wore which robes? The witch costumes were designed to break with the conventional black robes that witch characters had traditionally worn in previous movies. Each dress, cape and hairstyle reflects the bubbly personalities of the Sanderson Sisters.

Thackery Binx, the talking cat, was the first partially computer-animated character in a movie. Six animatronic cats and eight live cats helped play the part, and groundbreaking new CGI technology brought the bewitched, spirited kitty to life.

Meet the LEGO® Designers

Clever witches, beware of secret details haunting this cottage! Amber combined LEGO® humour and the quirkiness of the movie with some personal, funny touches, like the quilt that combines all the colours from the sisters' dresses. This set brings the magic and mischief from the movie to life, with skeletons and cobwebs, tombstones, potion bottles, broomsticks, Mary's flying hoover and the cauldron full of life-sucking potion! PS: Five years ago, I built my version of the witches' cottage, and I may have cast a few ~~curse~~ harmless spells to get to work on this set.'

—Ann Healy, LEGO Ideas Model Designer

Disney's Hocus Pocus is one of the great movies of the 90s, so it's fitting that this set came to life with support from the fans! I loved the level of detail in Amber's original submission. It really captured the atmosphere of the house from the movie, and we kept that density in the set. The chimney and the waterwheel were already lined up, so we connected those mechanisms so they both move. Being able to "light up" the fire pit is a nice extra feature to add to the haunting vibes. We've even installed a sprinkler (conjured from a grey flower element) for extra safety.'

—James May, LEGO Ideas Model Designer

The model really shows how much Amber loves the movie. Like so many other fans who grew up with the movie, I had been stalking her project on the LEGO Ideas website. She did such a great job with her research, and her model was a perfect framework. What can you do to improve on something that is already so well done? We had fun sneaking funny movie references and details into the graphics for fans to conjure into view as they build. Now grown-up fans can watch the movie with their kids and build this set with them, too, and I hope we did the movie and the fans justice!'
